Haitbrink Asphalt Paving's new Hamm HD12 vibratory asphalt roller purchased from Nixon-Egli Equipment.

Haitbrink Asphalt Paving, Inc. is a full-service grading and paving company specializing in grading, paving, grinding, trench repair, concrete, seal coating, striping, and ADA upgrades. In 1987 Robert Haitbrink established the company in Corona, they provide everything from residential repairs to full-street or parking lot construction throughout southern California. Robert Haitbrink now serves as the company's vice president with the company now being run by his son, Hunter Haitbrink, who serves as president.

Jason Lang is the general superintendent at Haitbrink Asphalt Paving and recently worked with Nixon-Egli Equipment to purchase two new Hamm HD12 vibratory asphalt rollers. The company has acquired other equipment from Nixon-Egli over the years, but this is their first Hamm purchase. "I was impressed that Hamm took the time to listen to operators and mechanics and get their feedback on what could make their rollers even better," says Lang. "They made some intelligent decisions in the most recent design and it has not gone unnoticed by our people. We like all of the new features, but are particularly impressed with the great visibility, ease of maintenance and overall user-friendly controls."

Lang has worked with Nixon-Egli sales representative, Allen Hahn for some time now. "Allen was there for us to make the entire process smooth and seamless," says Lang. "The entire staff at Nixon-Egli has always been there for us during and after the sale with exemplary parts and service, as well as a nice centralized convenient location."
